

The public needs to be involved in the decision making about the possible media consolidation. Public involvement is what democracy is all about. I am deeply disappointed that there is such a rush to vote before the people of this country have received real information and have had time to debate the issue.